You wouldn't want to miss this talk: Integrating visual communication and storytelling in Software Engineering without being a pixel-pusher by Vaishnavi Venkata Subramaniam.

Vaishnavi is a seasoned software engineer with over 14 years of full-stack development. She is passionate about empowering Women in Technology and is a champion of Neurodiversity, Accessibility, Diversity, Equity & Inclusion, improving culture in the workplace and visual communication. She loves supporting women in technology and working towards creating impact and giving back to their communities in every possible way.

For her, the art of storytelling and visual communications helps break cultural and language barrier and help spread technical concepts.
